Dear Germain:

What a nice letter; thank you. My wife and I went to Paris and then to England in October and November, so I think I should have been obliged to miss your annual drawing show in any event. I do come to New York occasionally but I hope to do so less for several months now, as I am digging in on the Prince Albert book, for which the research material is now more than adequate. But I shall look for a chance to visit you. Greetings to your wife.

Yours ever,

Winslow.

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.
