that affectionate quality of the French salute; it is generally delivered with a strained countenance and once over seems to give the executor of the sign a feeling of "well that's over!" The British salute is very military - and peculiar in its own right. But ~~it is executed by officers, is more~~ it, as executed by officers, is more affable than ours. Sorry to say it, but that's the way it appears to me.

The little boys, always to be found in every commune, never fail (as witness this one stopping out of many such) to try to imitate our best snap of the hand and crook of the elbow, adding on their own hook an ejaculatory "allo-goo-dbye," or "igarete", or "souvenir", the last two with outstretched fist. They are likable little beggars.

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.
