in the rooms of the department caused by repairs to the heating apparatus, the curator was unable to do much work on reptiles. He improved the opportunity, however, to finish an extensive paper on the Henson collection of Japanese birds recently acquired by the museum.

During such intervals of warmer weather which made it possible to handle alcoholics, he continues his studies of the reptiles brought home by the Death Valley expedition of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

During the month about 1050 generic names, with their references

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.
