Smithsonian Institution
Archives of American Art

Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney's Diary, 1894-1895

Extracted on Mar-29-2024 07:58:04

The Smithsonian Institution thanks all digital volunteers that transcribed and reviewed this material. Your work enriches Smithsonian collections, making them available to anyone with an interest in using them.

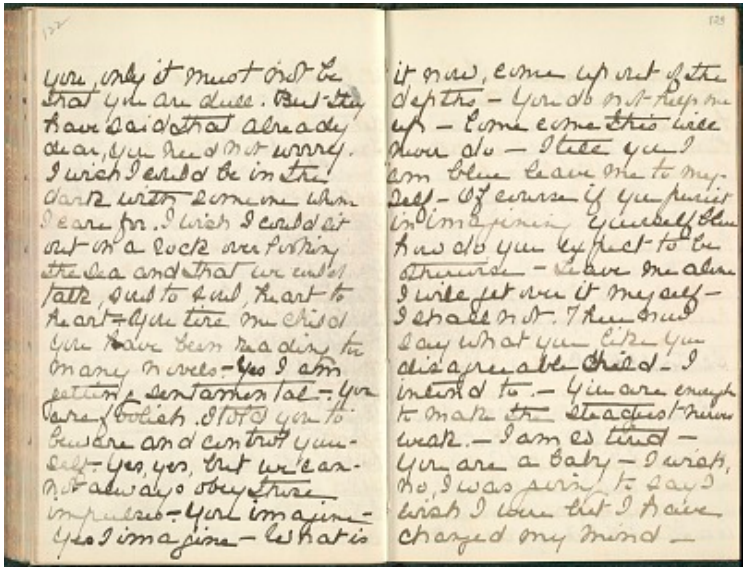

The Smithsonian Institution (the "Smithsonian") provides the content on this website (transcription.si.edu), other Smithsonian websites, and third-party sites on which it maintains a presence ("SI Websites") in support of its mission for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge." The Smithsonian invites visitors to use its online content for personal, educational and other non-commercial purposes. By using this website, you accept and agree to abide by the following terms.

- If sharing the material in personal and educational contexts, please cite the Archives of American Art as source of the content and the project title as provided at the top of the document. Include the accession number or collection name; when possible, link to the Archives of American Art website.
- If you wish to use this material in a for-profit publication, exhibition, or online project, please contact Archives of American Art or transcribe@si.edu

For more information on this project and related material, contact the Archives of American Art. See this project and other collections in the Smithsonian Transcription Center.

you, only it must not be that you are dull. But they have said that already dear, you need not worry. I wish I could be in the dark with someone whom I care for. I wish I could sit out on a rock overlooking the sea and that we could talk, girl to girl, heart to heart - you tire me child, you have been reading too many novels. - Yes I am getting sentamental.- You are foolish. I told you to beware and control yourself -. Yes, yes, but we cannot always obey those impulses -. You imagine - Yes I imagine - What is it now, come up out of the depths - You do not keep me up - Come come this will never do - I tell you I am blue leave me to myself - Of course if you persist in imagining yourself blue how do you expect to be otherwise - Leave me alone I will get over it myself - I shall not. There now say what you like you disagreeable child - I intend to.- You are enough to make the steadiest nerves weak.- I am so tired - You are a baby - I wish, no, I was going to say I wish I were but I have changed my mind -
[[end page]]
[[start page]]

Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney's Diary, 1894-1895
Transcribed and Reviewed by Digital Volunteers
Extracted Mar-29-2024 07:58:04

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities.Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.

Join us!
The Transcription Center: https://transcription.si.edu
On Facebook: https://www.facebook.com/SmithsonianTranscriptionCenter
On Twitter: @TranscribeSI

Connect with the Smithsonian
Smithsonian Institution: www.si.edu
On Facebook: https://www.facebook.com/Smithsonian
On Twitter: @smithsonian