

Smithsonian Institution

Archives of American Art

Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney's Diary, Vol. II, 1895-1896

Extracted on Feb-07-2023 03:56:04

The Smithsonian Institution thanks all digital volunteers that transcribed and reviewed this material. Your work enriches Smithsonian collections, making them available to anyone with an interest in using them.

The Smithsonian Institution (the "Smithsonian") provides the content on this website (transcription.si.edu), other Smithsonian websites, and third-party sites on which it maintains a presence ("SI Websites") in support of its mission for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge." The Smithsonian invites visitors to use its online content for personal, educational and other non-commercial purposes. By using this website, you accept and agree to abide by the following terms.

- If sharing the material in personal and educational contexts, please cite the Archives of American Art as source of the content and the project title as provided at the top of the document. Include the accession number or collection name; when possible, link to the Archives of American Art website.
- If you wish to use this material in a for-profit publication, exhibition, or online project, please contact Archives of American Art or transcribe@si.edu

For more information on this project and related material, contact the Archives of American Art. See this project and other collections in the Smithsonian Transcription Center.

March 8th 1895.

Established in Paris for one day! But before I tell you about this side of the ocean I must finish the other side up. My past day in New York! It was a beautiful cold crisp kind of day, yet spring like. The sky was bluer than it had been for a long time and the air more balmy.

For a change I was on time for breakfast. Right after I had a music lesson and my poor afflicted teacher was even nicer than usual it seemed to me. At ten thirty promptly I put on my things. I determined not to take my maid and wanted to be with Esther all the morning and of course there was a good deal

Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney's Diary, Vol. II, 1895-1896
Transcribed and Reviewed by Digital Volunteers
Extracted Feb-07-2023 03:56:04

Smithsonian Institution

Archives of American Art

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.

Join us!

The Transcription Center: <https://transcription.si.edu>

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/SmithsonianTranscriptionCenter>

On Twitter: @TranscribeSI

Connect with the Smithsonian

Smithsonian Institution: www.si.edu

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/Smithsonian>

On Twitter: @smithsonian