but if he had to go, it was a beautiful death. He was so dear and sweet to me. He was like a ray of sunshine in the home, always loving and affectionate. His life was short but so very useful. I suppose God does not put more on us than we can bear. Your father wrote my son your right arm was badly hurt and your left foot. If they do send you home I want you to come to see us. For no one in the world would be more welcome. [[End page]]

[[Start page]] It is hard for me to think I will never have my boy home with me again, but I expect to see him sometime. I feel that I ought not to write you a blue letter like this but I suppose it will not make you feel like it would if you were not accustomed to so much sorrow and suffering. I know Herbert loved you for he spoke of you so often. I hope you will be well by the time you get this letter. With love to you from my entire family, I am your friend always, Mrs. Joseph E. Jones, Herbert's Mother

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.
