

Theodore E. Boyd World War I Collection - Handwritten Memoirs and Rosters

Extracted on Apr-18-2024 01:42:59

The Smithsonian Institution thanks all digital volunteers that transcribed and reviewed this material. Your work enriches Smithsonian collections, making them available to anyone with an interest in using them.

The Smithsonian Institution (the "Smithsonian") provides the content on this website (transcription.si.edu), other Smithsonian websites, and third-party sites on which it maintains a presence ("SI Websites") in support of its mission for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge." The Smithsonian invites visitors to use its online content for personal, educational and other non-commercial purposes. By using this website, you accept and agree to abide by the following terms.

- If sharing the material in personal and educational contexts, please cite the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives as source of the content and the project title as provided at the top of the document. Include the accession number or collection name; when possible, link to the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives website.
- If you wish to use this material in a for-profit publication, exhibition, or online project, please contact Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives or transcribe@si.edu

For more information on this project and related material, contact the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives. See this project and other collections in the Smithsonian Transcription Center.

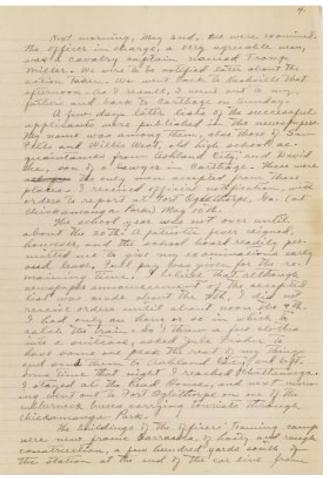

4

Next morning, May 2nd, we were examined. The officer in charge, a very agreeable man, was a cavalry captain named Troup Miller. We were to be notified later about the action taken. We went back to Nashville that afternoon. As I recall, I went out to my father's and back to Carthage on Sunday.

A few days later lists of the successful applicants were published in the newspapers. My name was among them, also those of Sam Felts and Willis West, old high school acquaintances from Ashland City, and David Lee, son of a lawyer in Carthage. These were [[strikethrough]] all fro [/strikethrough]] the only men accepted from those places. I received official notification, with orders to report at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga (at Chickamauga Park) May 10th.

The school year was not over until about the 20th. A patriotic fever reigned, however, and the school board readily permitted me to give my examinations early and leave. Full pay was given for remaining time. I believe that, although newspaper announcement of the accepted list was made about the 10th, I did not receive orders until about noon the 9th. I I had only an hour or so in which to catch the train. So I threw a few clothes into a suitcase, asked Jule Fisher to have some one pack the rest of my things and send them to Ashland City, and left. Some time that night I reached Chattanooga. I stayed at The Read House, and next morning went out to Fort Oglethorpe on one of the rubberneck buses carrying tourists through Chickamauga Park.

The buildings of the officers' training camps were new frame barracks, of hasty and rough construction, a few hundred yards south of the station at the end of the car line from

Theodore E. Boyd World War I Collection - Handwritten Memoirs and Rosters
Transcribed and Reviewed by Digital Volunteers
Extracted Apr-18-2024 01:42:59

Smithsonian Institution

Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.

Join us!

The Transcription Center: https://transcription.si.edu
On Facebook: https://www.facebook.com/SmithsonianTranscriptionCenter

On Twitter: @TranscribeSI

Connect with the Smithsonian Smithsonian Institution: www.si.edu

On Facebook: https://www.facebook.com/Smithsonian

On Twitter: @smithsonian