machine function the first five years (to 1949). Following the announcement, he went to England for new orders.

MAY: Ten years talk of local industries crystallized in a "Buy Jamaican" Campaign sponsored by Jamaica Manufacturers' Association. Week-long pageantry was highlighted by beauty queens from the parishes and industrial floats.

JUNE: Jamaica received signal honour when native son Harold Egbert Allan was elevated to knighthood and invited to Buckingham Palace to receive the accolade from H.M. the King.

AUGUST: At World Olympics young Jamaican giant Arthur Wint was first to raise the Union Jack by winning the coveted 400-m. race, with his compatriot Herb McKenley running second. Between them and the rest of the Jamaica team, pin-point-size "Paradise Island" was brought into glorious repute among the big nations of the world.

SEPTEMBER: Two-gun killer Ivanhoe (Rhigin) Martin was shot at Lime Cay in a gun duel with the police. Escaped convict, he dashed up a one-man terror wave across the city, had the police hunting for six weeks during which he killed a detective, a woman, wounded seven, included a cop.

AUGUST: Prime Minister W. A. Bustamante returned from England to receive a historic welcome. Over 60,000 people of all political hues
