

Smithsonian Institution

Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives

Thomas DeWitt Milling Collection - Preliminary Report of Inspection of Air Service Activities in the Hawaiian Department...

Extracted on Mar-29-2023 09:33:20

The Smithsonian Institution thanks all digital volunteers that transcribed and reviewed this material. Your work enriches Smithsonian collections, making them available to anyone with an interest in using them.

The Smithsonian Institution (the "Smithsonian") provides the content on this website (transcription.si.edu), other Smithsonian websites, and third-party sites on which it maintains a presence ("SI Websites") in support of its mission for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge." The Smithsonian invites visitors to use its online content for personal, educational and other non-commercial purposes. By using this website, you accept and agree to abide by the following terms.

- If sharing the material in personal and educational contexts, please cite the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives as source of the content and the project title as provided at the top of the document. Include the accession number or collection name; when possible, link to the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives website.
- If you wish to use this material in a for-profit publication, exhibition, or online project, please contact Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives or transcribe@si.edu

For more information on this project and related material, contact the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives. See this project and other collections in the Smithsonian Transcription Center.

the western world had become so expert in the art of war and in the making of gunpowder that they not only no longer feared the invasions of the Mongolian hordes but pushed their commerce under the guns of their men of war to the gates of Pokin and the Bay of Yedo. In fact, as far as the continents of Europe and Asia are concerned, their people have reached a state of more or less geographic equilibrium as to the centers of population. Their populations, however, is increasing in number constantly, their soil is supporting as many as it can conveniently look after, so, all that remains is the finding of a new outlet and haven for their ever increasing millions.

Westward from the old continent of Europe, and eastward from the still older continent of Asia, lie the new and undeveloped vastnesses of the new world. Fortunately for us they were seized and taken possession of by the whites in spite of the fact that they undoubtedly were discovered and visited by the yellows many centuries before. In those days the transportation problems were so difficult that a crossing of the the western world had become so expert in the art of war and in the making of gunpowder that they not only no longer feared the invasions of the Mongolian hordes but pushed their commerce under the guns of their men of war to the gates of Pokin and the Bay of Yedo. In fact, as far as the continents of Europe and Asia are concerned, their people have reached a state of more or less geographic equilibrium as to the centers of population. Their population, however, is increasing in number constantly, their soil is supporting as many as it can conveniently look after, so, all that remains is the finding of a new outlet and haven for their ever increasing millions.

Westward from the old continent of Europe, and eastward from the still older continent of Asia, lie the new and undeveloped vastnesses of the new world. Fortunately for us they were seized and taken possession of by the whites in spite of the fact that they undoubtedly were discovered and visited by the yellows many centuries before. In those days the transportation problems were so difficult that a crossing of the

Smithsonian Institution

Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.

Join us!

The Transcription Center: <https://transcription.si.edu>

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/SmithsonianTranscriptionCenter>

On Twitter: @TranscribeSI

Connect with the Smithsonian

Smithsonian Institution: www.si.edu

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/Smithsonian>

On Twitter: @smithsonian