Dear Mrs. Cutting:

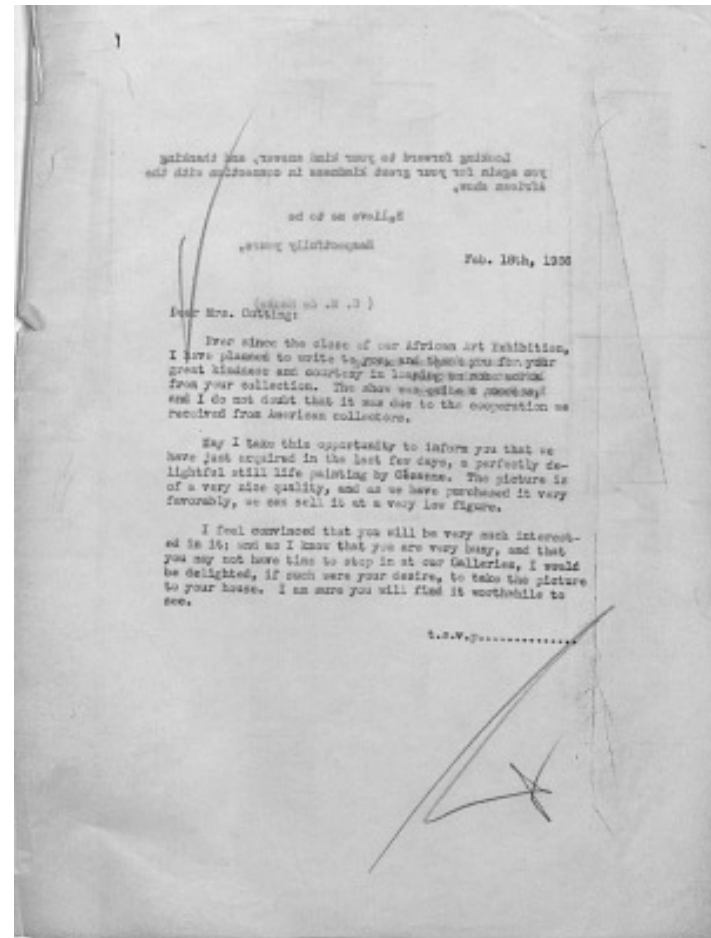

Ever since the close of our African Art Exhibition, I have planned to write to you, and thank you for your great kindness and courtesy in loaning us some works from your collection. The show was quite a success, and I do not doubt that it was due to the cooperation we received from American collectors.

May I take this opportunity to inform you that we have just acquired in the last few days, a perfectly delightful still life painting by Cézanne. The picture is of a very nice quality, and as we have purchased it very favorably, we can sell it at a very low figure.

I feel convinced that you will be very much interested in it; and as I know that you are very busy, and that you may not have time to stop in at our Galleries, I would be delighted, if such were your desire, to take the picture to your house. I am sure you will find it worthwhile to see.

t.s.v.p.....
