Mr. G. H. P. -2-

article missing, being the contributions to Knowledge, of the Smithsonian, in regard to the mounds and works in Ohio. I really feel very proud of having these articles, as it is every one that has been published on the subject.

We are having every night a struggle, Mr. Lentz and myself, with the pottery up at the house, but it is now getting in fairly good shape, and I have found it very educating to have handled and mended it. I am extremely pleased with Lentz, and find him a very hard and conscientious worker.

Do take time to drop us a line, if not writing as a letter, to let us know you are still on earth.

With very best wishes, and trusting that you are well and only lazy, and that nothing serious has happened to you, I remain,

National Museum of the American Indian Archives Center

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.
