

Ruth Law Collection - Scrapbook

Extracted on Mar-28-2024 08:29:18

The Smithsonian Institution thanks all digital volunteers that transcribed and reviewed this material. Your work enriches Smithsonian collections, making them available to anyone with an interest in using them.

The Smithsonian Institution (the "Smithsonian") provides the content on this website (transcription.si.edu), other Smithsonian websites, and third-party sites on which it maintains a presence ("SI Websites") in support of its mission for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge." The Smithsonian invites visitors to use its online content for personal, educational and other non-commercial purposes. By using this website, you accept and agree to abide by the following terms.

- If sharing the material in personal and educational contexts, please cite the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives as source of the content and the project title as provided at the top of the document. Include the accession number or collection name; when possible, link to the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives website.
- If you wish to use this material in a for-profit publication, exhibition, or online project, please contact Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives or transcribe@si.edu

For more information on this project and related material, contact the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives. See this project and other collections in the Smithsonian Transcription Center.

Ruth Law Here, Recalls Air Stunt of '17 Ruth Law, a name in aviation history, came to Washington vesterday—minus black satin bloomers, a pair of goggles and a plane. But the thoughts of the famous aviatrix, third woman in the United States to win a flying license, did a tailspin to the old days—when her hair was titian instead of gray and her favorite spot was at the controls of a plane. Here to attend Smithsonian Institution ceremonies marking official receipt of the Wright plane, Miss Law recalled her first visit to Washington—in 1917. In those days the onetime stunt pilot, now a handsome woman of 61, stirred the Capital to its finger tips when she guided a plane over the Pennsylvania ave, trolley track onto the Ellipse south of the White House. It was all done to spur the sale of Liberty

Her thoughts rested for a moment, too, on the far-off days when she prevailed on her husband to buy her a Wright airplane, making her the first woman to own one. She recalled that she once asked Orville Wright, one of the flying brothers, to teach her to fly. But he refused. "He didn't think women could fly," she said. "At any rate, he didn't want to be responsible for teaching me."

Miss Law, who was stopping at Hotel Mayflower, confessed—almost shamefacedly—that she came to Washington from the West Coast by

But that, she hastened to explain, is not indicative of a loss of interest in flying. In fact, she said smiling, "I'm thinking about" taking to the air again, and not as a passenger.

[[cut off]] Mrs. Ethel Craddock, Doll House attendant. The dolls will be given to less fortunate youngsters at Christmas.

Air Show Scheduled At Kitty Hawk

Kitty Hawk, N. C., Dec. 16 ([[AP?]]).—The forty-fifth anniversary of the Wright brothers' first airplane flight will be observed here tomorrow with an impressive display of America's air might.

About 200 Navy and Marine planes will fly over the tall pylon which marks the spot where the Ohioans made their historic flight. Principal speaker at the luncheon following the pylon ceremony will be Mark E. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

LOOK II[[exponent, X]] X II[[exponent, II]] CLOTH IN EVERY BOX OF THIS WHITE, GRANULATED SOAP NEW IMPROVED [[cut off, Silver?]]

Ruth Law Here, Recalls Air Stunt of '17 Air Shore Scheduled

Ruth Law, a name in aviation Kitty Hasek N. C. Dec. 16 (4)

Ruth Law, a name in wristion history, came to Washington yesterday—minus blark satin bloomers, a pair of goggles and a place. Weight brothers' first airplane availties, third weman in the United morrow with an impressive disStates to win a flying Beense, did About 200 Navy and Marine at tallipin to the sid days—when her hair was titlan instead of gray places will by over the tall pylon and her favoritie spot was at the bestirols of a plane.

Principal avaslar at the historic flushprincipal avaslar at the historic flushprincipal avaslar at the lands-controls of a plane.

Here to attend Selithannian InPrincipal speaker at the lanchstitution ceremonies marking ofcon following the system coremony ficial receipt of the Wright plane, will be Mark E. Andrews. AssistMiss Law recalled her first visit to ant Secretary of the Naty.

Washington—in 1917, In those day the continue shart pilet, new A handsome wurnan of 61, stirred the Coultai to its fagure thus when one Capital to its finger tips when she gaided a plane over the Pennsylunia ave, trolley tracks onto the ipse south of the White House. was all done to spur the sale of herty bands.

Her thoughts rested for a reoment, too, on the far-off days when she prevailed on her hus-bond to buy her a Wright airplane, making her the first woman to own one. She recalled that she once asked Orville Wright, one of the flying beothers, to teach ber o fly. But be refused.

'He didn't think women could fly," she said. "At any rate, he idn't want to be responsible for caching me."

Miss Law, who was stopping at Hotel Mayflower, confessed—al-most shamefaceNy—that she ame to Washington from the West Coast by train.

But that, she hastened to explain, is not indicative of a less of interest in fixing. In fact, she said similing, "I'm thinking about" taking to the air again, and not as a passenger.

Mrs. Ethel Craddock, Doll House attendant. The dolls will be given to less fortunate youngstern at Christman

At Kitty Hawk

Ruth Law Collection - Scrapbook Transcribed and Reviewed by Digital Volunteers Extracted Mar-28-2024 08:29:18

Smithsonian Institution

Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Archives

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.

Join us!

The Transcription Center: https://transcription.si.edu
On Facebook: https://www.facebook.com/SmithsonianTranscriptionCenter

On Twitter: @TranscribeSI

Connect with the Smithsonian Smithsonian Institution: www.si.edu

On Facebook: https://www.facebook.com/Smithsonian

On Twitter: @smithsonian