Sunafternoon,

The sun is clouding in so its going to rain to night according to the radio. we have both had our naps. I am writing a few lines more to fill in my time. thinking meantime some one may come to fill in the time before night. time hangs heavy on our hands. Maude must be pretty busy Anna said the nurse had gone. she must be up and around by this time and the little one three weeks old. Lena wants to go and see the kid. she likes Maude and Ralph.

the temperature was about freezing this morning. I have not carried my stone to bed for weeks I like to feel the coolness of the bed. Lena takes a stone also her hot water bottle then streaches the window up. I guess you are riding off to the beach some where by now. any thing for a change I am glad that Doris is going to school it gives you more liberty to do as your a mind to & is a rest. she demands your attention because you both have given in to her. a very hard child to bring up. she is all there is & never stops to consider anybody else exists but just herself. Mrs. Robbins says she needs discipline. Little Henry and Ralph were the same. made too much of thats the only trouble.

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.
