

Smithsonian Institution

National Museum of African American History and Culture

The Literary Corner: A Comparative Analysis of African and Afro American Literature with Mildred Hill and the Series Conclusion

Extracted on Apr-16-2024 10:54:30

The Smithsonian Institution thanks all digital volunteers that transcribed and reviewed this material. Your work enriches Smithsonian collections, making them available to anyone with an interest in using them.

The Smithsonian Institution (the "Smithsonian") provides the content on this website (transcription.si.edu), other Smithsonian websites, and third-party sites on which it maintains a presence ("SI Websites") in support of its mission for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge." The Smithsonian invites visitors to use its online content for personal, educational and other non-commercial purposes. By using this website, you accept and agree to abide by the following terms.

- If sharing the material in personal and educational contexts, please cite the National Museum of African American History and Culture as source of the content and the project title as provided at the top of the document. Include the accession number or collection name; when possible, link to the National Museum of African American History and Culture website.
- If you wish to use this material in a for-profit publication, exhibition, or online project, please contact National Museum of African American History and Culture or transcribe@si.edu

For more information on this project and related material, contact the National Museum of African American History and Culture. See this project and other collections in the Smithsonian Transcription Center.

WEBVTT

00:06:32.000 --> 00:06:39.000

Mildred Hill-Lubin: He has a chapter in which, uh, there is the confrontation with the white man. He has the chapter on education and so on.

00:06:39.000 --> 00:06:57.000

So, if you look at the way the book is organized you will even see some of the various points that I have done. The same is true in Achebe, his book is not divided quite in the same way, but he does deal with practically all of these, uh, topics, the headings that I have mentioned.

00:06:57.000 --> 00:07:13.000

One of the interesting points about it in particularity if you want to understand that ritual drama that I spoke of, uh, if you read this section in there where he talks about the yam festival, then you will see that interrelated-ness.

00:07:13.000 --> 00:07:31.000

And, uh, one of the important aspects of, uh, of understanding this drama is that it does say a great deal, I think, about the African's way of looking at the world. And uh, his-- his-- his-- world, the African world view that I tend to think of.

00:07:31.000 --> 00:07:58.000

In it, there is, uh, no separation between the sacred and the secular and that's very obvious because the-- the writer points out, Achebe points out in this festival that it is both religious as well as secular and that the people do dancing, they have sports, wrestling, they have um, uh, eating, and you have all of these interrelated activities.

00:07:58.000 --> 00:08:14.000

Now, why this particular chapter's quite important because it does say a great deal about what I think is African creativity, it gives us a very good clue to how our creativ--tivity is promoted and enhanced.

00:08:14.000 --> 00:08:26.000

Uh, it involves a great deal of of communal participation, uh particular with the audience. And what we do get here, many people will say that African people are not competitive enough.

00:08:26.000 --> 00:08:35.310

But if you begin to look at this process you will see that there is a great deal of competition. But the competition is not in terms of achieving a product but it is in

Smithsonian Institution

National Museum of African American History and Culture

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.

Join us!

The Transcription Center: <https://transcription.si.edu>

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/SmithsonianTranscriptionCenter>

On Twitter: @TranscribeSI

Connect with the Smithsonian

Smithsonian Institution: www.si.edu

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/Smithsonian>

On Twitter: @smithsonian