One Size Fits All

Graceful and chic as a high-fashion model, artist Robert Kushner performs "a fashion show of costumes" in which the garments take shape as they move with the human body. Thanks to Kushner's economical use of netting and sheer clothes, the viewer sees about as much of the designer's body as his fabrics. Look for the "747"--a traveler's hat that doubles as an extra piece of luggage--and for Kushner's exotically beautiful "Persian collection." Third in the unconventional SoHo TV series, this startling program will appear Monday, April 24, at 9 p.m. (Brown)

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.
