

Smithsonian Institution

Archives of American Art

Celebrating 175: Correspondence, Steinberg, Saul, 1944 January-February

Extracted on Mar-29-2024 02:54:58

The Smithsonian Institution thanks all digital volunteers that transcribed and reviewed this material. Your work enriches Smithsonian collections, making them available to anyone with an interest in using them.

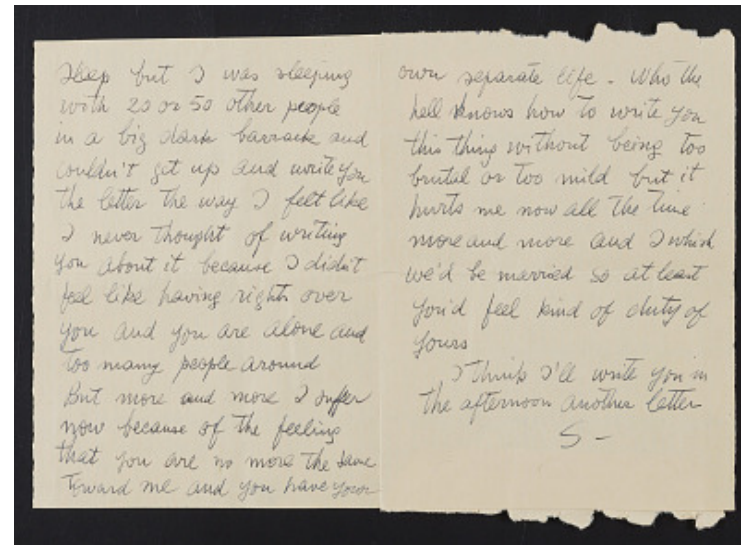

The Smithsonian Institution (the "Smithsonian") provides the content on this website (transcription.si.edu), other Smithsonian websites, and third-party sites on which it maintains a presence ("SI Websites") in support of its mission for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge." The Smithsonian invites visitors to use its online content for personal, educational and other non-commercial purposes. By using this website, you accept and agree to abide by the following terms.

- If sharing the material in personal and educational contexts, please cite the Archives of American Art as source of the content and the project title as provided at the top of the document. Include the accession number or collection name; when possible, link to the Archives of American Art website.
- If you wish to use this material in a for-profit publication, exhibition, or online project, please contact Archives of American Art or transcribe@si.edu

For more information on this project and related material, contact the Archives of American Art. See this project and other collections in the Smithsonian Transcription Center.

sleep but I was sleeping with 20 or 50 other people in a big dark barrack and couldn't get up and write you the letter the way I felt like I never thought of writing you about it because I didn't feel like having rights over you and you are alone and too many people around But more and more I suffer now because of the feelings that you are no more the same toward me and you have your own separate life - Who the hell knows how to write you this things without being too brutal or too mild but it hurts me now all the time more and more and I wish we'd be married so at least you'd feel kind of duty of yours

I think I'll write you in the afternoon another letter
S-

Celebrating 175: Correspondence, Steinberg, Saul, 1944 January-February
Transcribed and Reviewed by Digital Volunteers
Extracted Mar-29-2024 02:54:58

Smithsonian Institution

Archives of American Art

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.

Join us!

The Transcription Center: <https://transcription.si.edu>

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/SmithsonianTranscriptionCenter>

On Twitter: @TranscribeSI

Connect with the Smithsonian

Smithsonian Institution: www.si.edu

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/Smithsonian>

On Twitter: @smithsonian