

Smithsonian Institution

Archives of American Art

Celebrating 175: Correspondence, Steinberg, Saul, 1944 July-September

Extracted on Apr-24-2024 07:13:18

The Smithsonian Institution thanks all digital volunteers that transcribed and reviewed this material. Your work enriches Smithsonian collections, making them available to anyone with an interest in using them.

The Smithsonian Institution (the "Smithsonian") provides the content on this website (transcription.si.edu), other Smithsonian websites, and third-party sites on which it maintains a presence ("SI Websites") in support of its mission for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge." The Smithsonian invites visitors to use its online content for personal, educational and other non-commercial purposes. By using this website, you accept and agree to abide by the following terms.

- If sharing the material in personal and educational contexts, please cite the Archives of American Art as source of the content and the project title as provided at the top of the document. Include the accession number or collection name; when possible, link to the Archives of American Art website.
- If you wish to use this material in a for-profit publication, exhibition, or online project, please contact Archives of American Art or transcribe@si.edu

For more information on this project and related material, contact the Archives of American Art. See this project and other collections in the Smithsonian Transcription Center.

July 6 1944

Dear Hedda, I've been again on the move in the last days and I didn't have any chance to send you a letter. Now somebody is going back and will take this letter to the Post Office. I'm fine and sort of comfortable compared to what's around. I saw so much destruction in the last few days will last me for a long time - nervous women will throw a plate on the floor and they'll feel better after. I hope the world will feel better after all the broken houses, blown up bridges, torn rails, big skeletons of burned tanks with the smell of dead soldiers all around. I don't know how soon I'll be able to write you again. I didn't get mail from you for a long time now. But I think you all the time and you are as you know my wife and my connection with the future. That means a lot dear because no matter how sad or in bad spots I am there's one thing that keeps me up, you dear - I'm staying now - since yesterday,

July 6 1944
Dear Hedda, I've been again on the move in the last days and I didn't have any chance to send you a letter. Now somebody is going back and will take this letter to the Post Office. I'm fine and sort of comfortable compared to what's around. I saw so much destruction in the last few days will last me for a long time - nervous women will throw a plate on the floor and they'll feel better after. I hope the world will feel better after all the broken houses, blown up bridges, torn rails, big skeletons of burned tanks with the smell of dead soldiers all around. I don't know how soon I'll be able to write you again. I didn't get mail from you for a long time now. But I think you all the time and you are as you know my wife and my connection with the future. That means a lot dear because no matter how sad or in bad spots I am there's one thing that keeps me up, you dear - I'm staying now - since yesterday,

Celebrating 175: Correspondence, Steinberg, Saul, 1944 July-September
Transcribed and Reviewed by Digital Volunteers
Extracted Apr-24-2024 07:13:18

Smithsonian Institution

Archives of American Art

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.

Join us!

The Transcription Center: <https://transcription.si.edu>

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/SmithsonianTranscriptionCenter>

On Twitter: @TranscribeSI

Connect with the Smithsonian

Smithsonian Institution: www.si.edu

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/Smithsonian>

On Twitter: @smithsonian