

Smithsonian Institution

Archives of American Art

Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney diary

Extracted on Apr-23-2024 09:55:08

The Smithsonian Institution thanks all digital volunteers that transcribed and reviewed this material. Your work enriches Smithsonian collections, making them available to anyone with an interest in using them.

The Smithsonian Institution (the "Smithsonian") provides the content on this website (transcription.si.edu), other Smithsonian websites, and third-party sites on which it maintains a presence ("SI Websites") in support of its mission for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge." The Smithsonian invites visitors to use its online content for personal, educational and other non-commercial purposes. By using this website, you accept and agree to abide by the following terms.

- If sharing the material in personal and educational contexts, please cite the Archives of American Art as source of the content and the project title as provided at the top of the document. Include the accession number or collection name; when possible, link to the Archives of American Art website.
- If you wish to use this material in a for-profit publication, exhibition, or online project, please contact Archives of American Art or transcribe@si.edu

For more information on this project and related material, contact the Archives of American Art. See this project and other collections in the Smithsonian Transcription Center.

14

a walk with Alfred, then with Papa, and lastly with Mama. The boys and myself enjoyed several games of Old Maid with Papa. I have passed a very happy day, felt perfectly well, and as we made the splendid run of 446, I am perfectly happy. (Why should'n't I be?)

[[end page]]
[[start page]]

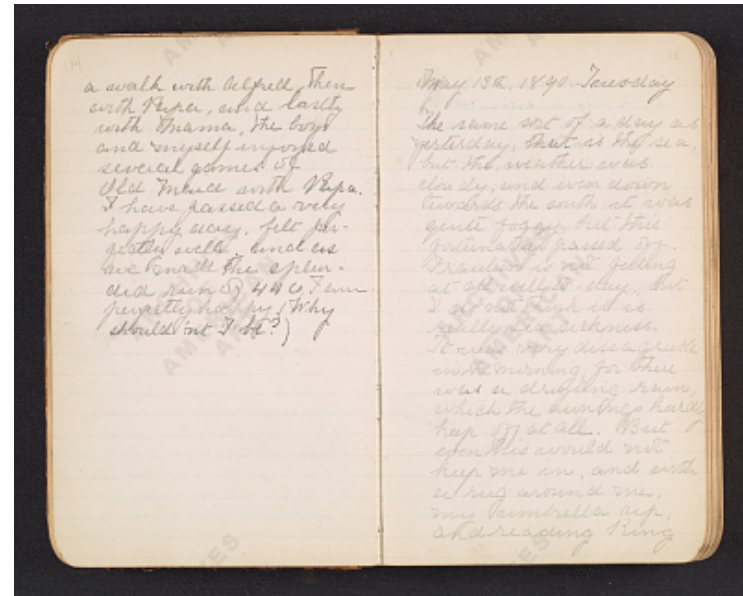

15

May 13th. 1890. Tuesday

The same sort of a day as yesterday. That is the sea, but the weather was cloudy and even down towards the south it was quite foggy, but this fortunately passed off. Fraulein is not feeling at all well to-day, but I do not think it is really sea sickness.

It was very disagreeable in the morning, for there was a drizzling rain, which the awnings hardly keep off at all. But even this would not keep me in, and with a rug around me, my umbrella up and reading King

[[end page]]

Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney diary
Transcribed and Reviewed by Digital Volunteers
Approved by Smithsonian Staff
Extracted Apr-23-2024 09:55:08

Smithsonian Institution

Archives of American Art

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.

Join us!

The Transcription Center: <https://transcription.si.edu>

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/SmithsonianTranscriptionCenter>

On Twitter: @TranscribeSI

Connect with the Smithsonian

Smithsonian Institution: www.si.edu

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/Smithsonian>

On Twitter: @smithsonian