

Smithsonian Institution

National Museum of African American History and Culture

What the Graduates of Lincoln Institute are Doing, 1906

Extracted on Mar-29-2024 01:17:59

The Smithsonian Institution thanks all digital volunteers that transcribed and reviewed this material. Your work enriches Smithsonian collections, making them available to anyone with an interest in using them.

The Smithsonian Institution (the "Smithsonian") provides the content on this website (transcription.si.edu), other Smithsonian websites, and third-party sites on which it maintains a presence ("SI Websites") in support of its mission for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge." The Smithsonian invites visitors to use its online content for personal, educational and other non-commercial purposes. By using this website, you accept and agree to abide by the following terms.

- If sharing the material in personal and educational contexts, please cite the National Museum of African American History and Culture as source of the content and the project title as provided at the top of the document. Include the accession number or collection name; when possible, link to the National Museum of African American History and Culture website.
- If you wish to use this material in a for-profit publication, exhibition, or online project, please contact National Museum of African American History and Culture or transcribe@si.edu

For more information on this project and related material, contact the National Museum of African American History and Culture. See this project and other collections in the Smithsonian Transcription Center.

92

MISS LAURA A. JACKSON.

of Lincoln Institute. She teaches history now in her classes without its being a burden.

During the summer terms of Lincoln Institute she has made commendable records in the art of beadwork, basketry and methods of teaching.

[[end page]]
[[start page]]

93

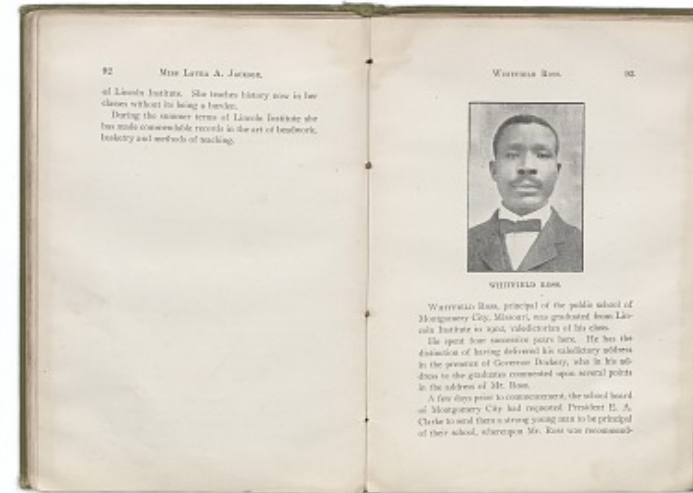

WHITFIELD ROSS.

[[image - black & white photograph of Whitfield Ross]]
[[caption]] WHITFIELD ROSS [[/caption]]

WHITFIELD ROSS, principal of the public school of Montgomery City, Missouri, was graduated from Lincoln Institute in 1902, valedictorian of his class.

He spent four successive years here. He has the distinction of having delivered his valedictory address in the presence of Governor Dockery, who in his address to the graduates commented upon several points in the address of Mr. Ross.

A few days prior to commencement, the school board of Montgomery City had requested President E.A. Clarke to send them a strong young man to be principal of their school, whereupon Mr. Ross was recommend-

What the Graduates of Lincoln Institute are Doing, 1906
Transcribed and Reviewed by Digital Volunteers
Extracted Mar-29-2024 01:17:59

Smithsonian Institution

National Museum of African American History and Culture

The mission of the Smithsonian is the increase and diffusion of knowledge - shaping the future by preserving our heritage, discovering new knowledge, and sharing our resources with the world. Founded in 1846, the Smithsonian is the world's largest museum and research complex, consisting of 19 museums and galleries, the National Zoological Park, and nine research facilities. Become an active part of our mission through the Transcription Center. Together, we are discovering secrets hidden deep inside our collections that illuminate our history and our world.

Join us!

The Transcription Center: <https://transcription.si.edu>

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/SmithsonianTranscriptionCenter>

On Twitter: @TranscribeSI

Connect with the Smithsonian

Smithsonian Institution: www.si.edu

On Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/Smithsonian>

On Twitter: @smithsonian